Wet roads lead to two Route 26 accidents

Slippery road conditions appear to have been a contributing factor in two Route 26 accidents Tuesday morning. Neither accident appears to have resulted in serious injury.

The first accident occurred at Trap Corner in West Paris, shortly after 10 a.m., when a 1990 Chrysler driven by Phillip Greenleaf, 81, of Norway, headed north on Route 26, attempted to make a left turn onto Route 219 and was struck broadside by a 1986 Dodge Colt headed south.

The southbound vehicle, containing a family of vacationers from Quebec, had attempted to stop for Greenleaf's car but then skidded on the wet pavement.

The impact of the collision knocked the Greenleaf car onto the intersection divider, where it broke off a highway sign before bouncing back onto the roadway.

Witnesses say there were three or four people in each of the vehicles, some of whom were shaken up, including Greenleaf's wife Emma, 81.

Newry sets hearing on withdrawal from SAD #44

The Newry Board of Selectmen has set Monday, August 27 as the date for a public hearing on the possibility of the town's withdrawing from SAD #44.

The action was in response to a petition signed by 29 town voters. The petition was presented by former SAD #44 Director Gail Sysko.

In May, the town held an informational meeting on the possibility of withdrawing from the school district. At that meeting, Richard Card, deputy commissioner of education, reviewed the town's legal options and the mechanics of a withdrawal.

He estimated that if Newry were to withdraw from the district, the remaining towns would have to come up with an additional $500,000 in local school taxes.

The upcoming public hearing does not constitute a commitment to withdraw, but it will allow voters to express their feelings on the matter.

Local school levies are based on real-estate valuation. Newry, with extensive and expensive development in the area of Sunday River Skiway, pays approximately 25 per-

Mountain biking, llama trekking catch the eye of national TV

National television networks are beginning to take note of the novel ways people in this part of Maine get about when they leave the beaten path.

Sunday River Skiway is busy setting up scaffolding for camera crews from the Resorts Sports Network.

The television crews will be here Aug. 18 and 19 to film the King of the Mountain Stage Race for mountain bikers.

The races will be held on Sunday River ski trails—which are now transformed during the summer into a mountain bike park.

Next weekend's races are sanctioned by the National Off-Road Mountain Biking Association. Registration for the event is limited to 500 riders, but Sunday River officials are expecting a crowd of 2,000 people to show up and check out the exciting new sport.

The weekend's events, which will be filmed for eventual broadcast on ESPN, include cross-country races, a dual slalom and a "Kamikazi Downhill," to be held on Sunday.

The events are open to beginners, sport riders, experts and professionals.

The television networks have also been attracted to a decidedly more restrained form of local off-road travel.

Last week CBS crews were at the Telemark Inn in Mason Township to film a piece on llama trekking in the White Mountains.

Inkeeper Steve Crone reports that the piece was filmed for presentation on the network's early morning news program and is expected to be aired within the next two weeks.

The llamas have also received recent national exposure in the Sunday supplement U.S.A. Weekend and in the magazine Metropolitan Home.

Broad St. work cut from CDBG

By CHRISTY CROSS

In response to news that Bethel can expect a $270,000 cut in the $850,000 requested in its Community Development Block Grant application, the selectmen here Monday night agreed to cut the Broad Street portion of the downtown sewer, water and storm system project.

The selectmen said, however, that the Broad Street work would still be done, although at a later date.

Town Manager Rodney Lynch told the selectmen that although the figure isn't final, the state's Department of Economic and Community Development last week told the town to plan on $579,900 rather than the $850,000 the town had applied for.

Lynch said other towns participating in this round of CDBG funding had suffered similar cuts.

He said that in light of the $270,000 shortfall, he and the town's consulting engineer, John Fancy, had agreed cutting the Broad Street project. Also, he said, they recommended increasing the Farmer's Home Administration part of the project funding from $285,000 to $330,000. He said that increase would allow the town to "do everything as we had planned out, except Broad Street."

Of the $330,000, 55 percent would be FmHA grant money, leaving the town to re-pay $148,000, Lynch said.

He said that while the selectmen could approve the FmHA application amount, the townspeople would have to vote at town meeting to accept the money.

The cost of the planned Phase I downtown sewer line, storm drain and water line upgrade now stands at $984,900, down from the nearly $1.2 million originally planned.

The Phase I project area includes Main Street, Spring Street, Mason Street, High Street, Elm Street and 950 feet of the Sanding Brook storm sewer.

While the agenda item up for the selectmen's approval at the meeting was the revised funding, discussion strayed to the connection between the CDBG funding and the proposed Bethel Park Apartments affordable housing project.

"There will be a contract from CDBG that the town will have to sign sometime this month," Fancy said.

"Yes, and at the same time the state is getting a commitment on Bethel Park Apartments," Lynch said. "They go together."

Linda Saunders, a member of both the affordable housing committee and the sewer study committee, disagreed.

A survey done in conjunction with the CDBG application process shows income levels in the area served by the project are low enough to qualify the town for CDBG funds, Saunders said.

"But the whole (application and project) would have to be put back together," Lynch argued.

The sewer, water and storm system rehabilitation project is planned in six phases. In addition to Phase I, Fancy advised the selectmen to authorize a request for proposals for engineering are Railroad Street, Elm Street, Lower Main Street, Church and Broad Streets, and Mill and Park Streets.

"With the economy the way it is, there's some advantage to having the plans done and on the shelf," Fancy said.

"The government has, in the past during economic downswings, come

State chopper douses fire in Mayville

By CHRISTY CROSS

Bethel Fire Chief Jim Young on Monday credited the fire fighting capacity of a Maine Forest Service helicopter for limiting the damage done by a forest fire which started Sunday in an old cut over site off Route 2 across from the Riverview Motel.

Young said the helicopter, piloted by Harold Jones, dumped about 12,000 gallons of water on the fire in a little over two hours, between about 3:30 and 5:30 p.m.

"If we hadn't had the helicopter come in, it would have got going pretty good," Young said. "He came in and hit the hot spots right off, then went for the edges."

Fire damage to the Mayville area property, owned by Murry Thurston, was limited to two and one-half to three acres, Young said.

Jones' efforts in the helicopter were backed up by 36 firefighters from Bethel and Newry on the ground wielding handtools and Indian tanks, Young said.

The helicopter arrived from Augusta in 22 minutes and made 40 trips from the Androscoggin River to the site, he said. The helicopter departed when it got low on fuel, leaving the men on the ground to finish up.

Young said the local firefighters worked at the site for another four hours.

"We left the crew at about 8:30 (Sunday) night and had a crew back in first thing (Monday) morning, probably for three hours. A lot of hot spots came back up overnight."

Rich said the report of the Mayville fire came right on the heels of a fire in a sawdust pile at the old Grafton Lumber company on Route 26, now owned by P.H. Chadbourne.

"Someone from Chadbourne's mill saw the smoke" at the old Grafton site and called the fire department at 2:25 p.m., Young said. Bethel firefighters limited the damage at the mill site to a burned area in the sawdust pile about 12x24 feet in size, according to Young.

He said the site is a place where four-wheel and three wheel ATVs and dirt bikes frequently travel. The fire could have been started by one of them, he said.

The report of smoke in the Mayville area on Route 2 came as firefighters were leaving the mill site, Young said.

"We could see the smoke from Route 26, especially by the bus garage, but we couldn't pinpoint it," Young said. The department had two or three people traveling the roads, out looking, he said. "We finally did spot it. The trucks left about 3:30 p.m."

Young said Bethel responded to the Mayville fire with two trucks and within a half-hour called in Newry for assistance. He said the fire was far enough in the woods that only four-wheel drive vehicles could get to the edge of the fire, and even they couldn't get to the back edges.

"We found one broken bottle in the area," but otherwise couldn't pin down the cause of the Mayville fire, Young said. Calling the rain on Monday and Tuesday a blessing, he said that with conditions as dry as they had gotten, a bottle or a piece of glass in the woods could have started the fire.

"Everything had pretty well dried out," he said.

Young said Newry firefighter Jim Bennett hurt his ankle at the fire site. "I don't think it was anything too major," he said. "We took him to Stephens (Memorial Hospital) just in case."

Young said Bethel would pay the Newry firefighters for their time and the Town of Newry for the use of its equipment in fighting the fire.

PROPER YOUNG LADIES IN A PROPER IRISH PARLOR—Clare Barker, left, and Nadine McCourt, of Belfast, Northern Ireland, strain to keep proper composure as they sit in the parlor of the Green Mountain Bed and Breakfast in Bryant Pond. Belfast's troubles far behind

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Eleven-year-old Nadine McCourt, a Catholic from Belfast, Northern Ireland, remembers the attack clearly.

"Oh, my ears are still ringing," she said, casting an accusing look at her Protestant buddy for the summer, Clare Barker.

Both girls then break up in giggles. Clare, on a recent visit to the Bryant Pond Crank Phone Museum, had given the crank on the model phone a good twist, while Nadine still had the receiver to her ear—getting her friend's attention in ringing fashion.

But the beautiful hills of western Maine are far from the mean streets of Belfast, and the spirited give and take between the two youngsters are a far cry from the brutal sectarian violence they've both experienced at home.

According to Margaret Hand, whose family is hosting Clare and Nadine for six weeks this summer, the girls have had no difficulty bridging the religious chasm that separates Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland.

At home in Belfast, Clare and Nadine live an hour—and a world—apart, in Protestant and Catholic neighborhoods where few members of the other religion are to be found.

In Maine, however, the girls are sharing a room, a family and a summer.

Clare and Nadine are among two dozen children spending the summer with Maine families under the sponsorship of the Maine Irish Children's Program.

The purpose of the program, Hand said, is to show the children that there are ways of living different from those they are exposed to in Belfast.

Changes come one at a time, she said, especially when it comes to matters as ingrained as religious prejudice.

"It shows them that Catholics don't have horns and Protestants don't have tails," Hand said.

Back in Northern Ireland, Clare and Nadine each have a few family friends of the other religion, so the two girls have been spared the more grotesque forms of prejudice and malignant misinformation that afflict their countrymen.

But both have been directly exposed to the political violence in Northern Ireland; their neighborhoods remain segregated, and they will go to segregated schools when they return home.

But in Maine they're summer bud-

Moose Tales: Part II

Sharing the pond

My daughter, Sharon Thomas, and family were at my home for vacation. We stopped to fish in this pond on the way home from Rangeley and a young moose crossed the road over to the pond. He wasn't going to let people keep him from his supper. My granddaughter, Tammie, looked on.

Mona's moose and...

One evening approximately three weeks ago, I was walking home from my son's house on Vernon Street in Bethel. It's about 1½ miles from his house to mine, a walk I have enjoyed doing many times.

I had just walked past Larry Smith's house heading towards Greenwood when out of the woods sauntered a moose. He didn't see me at that moment but I certainly saw him and my immediate concern was to find the nearest tree in case he took a turn in my direction.

As I stood there contemplating our situation (he not knowing we had one) down the straight of the road where the road bends, a mother bear and her cub ran across the road. I thought it was a large dog at first but I knew better once I saw the cub cross with her.

Imagine my surprise, not only a moose but a bear and cub all at once!

With the moose still in the road oblivious to myself and the bear who had just dashed off, Avery Angevine rounded that same bend the bear had just crossed.

Avery stopped to watch the moose. I wasn't sure at the time if Avery had seen me, but I knew he saw the moose. The moose, still not knowing I was around, turned and started walking down the road toward Avery's truck.

As the moose lumbered along, he finally took notice of one of us—that one being Avery. At that moment he stopped, looked at Avery and turned around in my direction. There he proceeded toward me. Now either moose have poor eyesight or he didn't care what was in his path. But once we had finally made eye contact, his old ears perked up and he came to a halt.

My immediate thought was, if he started to come any closer, to hide behind a tree I had already picked out.

"Oxford County Sheriff's emergency line."

"This is Christy Cross in Bethel. I think there's a man on the roof at my apartment."

"Where's your apartment?"

"Main Street, over the Bread & Butter Bake Shop... Oh my God, there he is. I can see him..."

It was after midnight. I had just come in from work. And there, about 15 feet from me on the other side of a very thin window, stood the shadowy figure of a man.

I stared. He didn't move. My kids—teen-agers—were chattering away... He's crazy, Mom... He's been saying weird things, like his father was murdered and his mother was raped by a black man... He says he's from Australia and L.A.... He called me a goddess of the sky... He's smoking something...

"Out," I said. "Out the door NOW."

All the old clichés came to mind, all the horror-movie pictures... Turns out he's a "voluntary committal" to Augusta Mental Health Institute; he'd just walked away one day last week. At work earlier in the evening I'd heard reports over the scanner that this same man had been harassing people at Norway Lake beach. He sure got around.

After the police left and after I went to bed, trying for quite sometime to close my peeled open eyelids, I thought of the court settlement announced last week. It calls for a mental health system that moves patients out of AMHI, that allows them to live in their communities in the least restrictive environment possible.

No way, I thought. Too dangerous. But the small knot in my stomach finally eased. It's not right, even in my short-lived fear, I realized, to condemn a whole group of people, broadly labeled "mentally ill" for the act of one man.

It could as easily have been a drunk, an outraged spouse (though their targets are usually more relative), a neighbor-turned-Peeping-Tom (I've seen that one, too; he was a lawyer).

No, the man is just that—a man acting alone. Should all men alone at night on Main Street be locked away? Should all men who roll their own cigarettes be locked away? Should all men who carry two dirty towels, a cigarette lighter, a tin foil wrapper of tobacco and an empty Winston box in a paper bag be locked away? Of course not.

Nor more than we can justify locking away a person who is deaf and dumb or a person who is mentally retarded can we justify locking away a person who is labeled mentally ill—unless, of course, that person is a danger to society. And that, by human right, must be judged on a case-by-case basis.

GAMM II RETRAINING

To the Editor:

I would like to bring your readers up to date on a story which was first covered last spring with the closing of the GAMM II plant in Bethel.

For the SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program, the story began with the rumors of the closing; and most vividly, with the meeting which was held at GAMM II with the 50 workers and representatives of state and local job training and educational agencies.

The workers were certainly worried about their futures, and the service providers were almost as nervous about our ability to really provide options for the workers. The events continued through months of hosting meetings, talking with many of the 25 workers who came from this area, and working with NOVA to secure funding for training based on the needs of the dislocated workers.

The rest of the story includes watching many of the workers refocus their lives and participate fully in the courses offered, following an initial period of remedial work in adult education classes.

The Clerical/Computer class of 10 students has been meeting 12 hours a week since May, and will conclude their training with a Career Week experience at area businesses during the week of Aug. 20.

Participating businesses are Bethel Savings Bank, Sunday River Ski Resort, Casco Northern Bank, Town of Bethel, Maine Handicapped Skiing, The Bethel Inn, the Gould Academy Development Office, Dr. Paulette Coyle's office, and the Bethel Area Health Center.

Two students have already secured jobs in the field and others are actively job-hunting or enrolling in degree programs in the fall.

For me, the graphic illustration that people can make great changes in a relatively short period of time came today when I was a guest at the graduation ceremony at NOVA for the Certified Nurse Aid class for GAMM

II workers. The excitement of the students and of their instructor, Lyn Barton, was evident.

Of the 10 graduates, eight have jobs, and one is enrolled in a pre-nursing program for the fall. At least three other GAMM II workers have been enrolled at Central Maine Technical College this summer, and plan to continue there or at the University of Maine at Augusta in the fall.

The GAMM II workers have been fortunate in that many are eligible for special continued training benefits because the plant was adversely affected by foreign competition, and that the State of Maine was able to provide interim funding to NOVA and SAD #44 for the initial training programs.

However, the GAMM II women have been quick to make use of the opportunities provided and have been a remarkable group to work with. I know that there are many chapters in this story yet to come.

IGA MADE THE EFFORT

To the Editor:

For well over a year now, I have become increasingly concerned about how I was going to do my fall canning when my current supply of canning jar rubber rings were used up. Talk that old standard jars were no longer usable and that the Ball Company had ceased making the single rubber ring in favor of a two piece closure, increased my anxiety.

A talk with Pat and Carl Glidden of Bethel IGA found them willing to try to obtain the rubbers from a Canadian firm. Their order has arrived and I'm most thankful to the Gliddens for making the effort for us canners (to say nothing of keeping all those old jars out of the recycling bin and functioning in my kitchen).

Thanks to Bethel IGA owners.

A.G.'s office to rescind state's July 1 contract with Maine Publicity Bureau

In response to complaints from a number of private tourism industry businesses, the Maine Attorney General's Office has ruled for the Maine State Bureau of Purchases that the "Tourism Information Distribution Services" contract which began July 1 with the Maine Publicity Bureau "...will not be executed," and that a "revised" Request for Proposals (RFP) will be re-issued for a Jan. 1, 1991 start date.

Tourism industry businesses charged that:

1. The RFP is unbidable as issued, with many state requests for services so vague and incomplete as to prevent responsible cost estimation, including computer information systems, telephone and mail response, maps and publications.

2. No previous bidders or finalists were notified of the RFP issuance.

3. No pre-bidders or bidders conference was held.

4. RFP specifics and restrictions severely limited profit potential for any business other than a non-profit business.

5. After the contract was awarded to the Maine Publicity Bureau (against only one other bidder), but before the contract was actually signed, many contract specifications were deleted, thereby completely changing the nature of the contract and more than doubling the potential income to the Publicity Bureau.

6. There appeared to be a potential conflict of interest regarding Jim Thompson, the Publicity Bureau's new Executive Director. He was formerly employed as the Director of Information for the Department of Economic and Community Development during the five-month process that that same department solicited and awarded the tourism contract.

A number of tourism businesses are now asking that the state tourism contract be completely overhauled and re-written to "level the playing field." Their requests to the Department of Economic and Community Development and its Office of Tourism include:

a. A pre-RFP conference, to allow all interested parties to make suggestions and comments regarding the nature, composition and specifics of the RFP before it is re-written.

b. That the RFP include specific, biddable criteria for all phases of information distribution, to permit definitive cost estimation and to ensure that the state not receive services which are inadequate, even though contract conditions might have been met.

c. That the contract holder not be allowed to require "membership" for any state-contracted service, including two-tiered magazine advertising rate schedules, brochure transportation and appeals for supplemental postage funds.

d. That any independent services or publications desired by the state, but now provided by the present contract holder outside the old contract, be included in the re-issued RFP.

e. That the RFP specify and fully describe any and all publications and maps required by the state for distribution over-the-counters of the six state tourism information centers, or through the mail at taxpayers' expense.

"Maine businesses have wanted the opportunity to compete fairly for this contract for over ten years," said John James, president of The Maine Vacation Travel Service, whose company publishes "The Maine Book." "This may, finally, be our chance." He acknowledged that in addition to his own firm's bid, there are several, large, well-known Maine businesses who are eager to bid against MPB, "to offer the state more capability and more sophisticated response mechanisms than any non-profit could ever provide," James continued. He would not name those companies, but added that several, large, out-of-state corporations might also bid for Maine's tourism contract, as they have in other states.

Gilbert Lea, president of Tower Publishing in Portland and runner-up for the contract three years ago added, "Maine would be far better equipped to compete against other states and regions for tourism dollars and marketshare, if we had readily-available, sophisticated tools at our disposal. I feel that a fresh approach and a new RFP could make these resources available to the tourism industry."

The owner of this year's second place finisher, Mark Patterson of The Travel Center in Sanford, said, "I've bid on several other state contracts, and this one was a sham."

"Maine tourism businesses seem to forget that the Maine Publicity Bureau is not a quasi-state agency, but a completely independent corporation that prints publications and staffs state-owned information centers, while continually winning the state tourism contract," John James continued. "Income from MPB's 'layered' and 'membership' services not specified in the state contract, brings them enormous profits which they 'squirrel away' (to quote a former MPB Board President), and then spend every three years to underbid everyone else for the state contract. This vicious cycle has been going on for years," James said. "Imagine a private construction company receiving a state contract to build a bridge at taxpayers' expense, ... and then, upon completion, imagine that same contractor being allowed to put up and operate a toll booth for its own profit. That's the situation that has existed for years, here in Maine, and we hope has finally ended," he concluded.

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

I will be devoting this column to explaining the condition of the trees that were planted on Main Street last year, our efforts to close-out the sewage plant upgrade work, providing an update on the downtown Bethel public improvement project, and commenting on Bethel's continuing recognition for its planning efforts.

Sterile pear trees
A number of people have expressed to me their concern over the condition of the sterile pear trees that were planted on Main Street last year. These trees suffered from winter browning which was more severe than usual this past winter.

George Hayes who planted the trees for the town will try to revive them. Should this effort fail, Hayes will replace all the dead trees at his own expense.

Sewage plant up-grade
For two months we have been working diligently to close out the upgrade work on the sewage plant. Problems such as vibration in the sludge return pipes and flow restriction in the pipe going to the chlorine contact chamber have been resolved. We are now trying to resolve the restriction problem with the pipe leading to the clarifiers from the aeration tank.

The selectmen will not vote to accept the upgrade work until John Fancy, Plant Operator Robert Gundersen and myself are satisfied with the construction and engineering design work. We want to avoid the kind of problems we had when the plant was built.

Downtown improvements
The engineering design plans for the new sewer lines, storm drains and water mains in the downtown area are 85 percent completed and are being reviewed by the town and other interested parties before the final drawings and construction specifications are prepared.

Concerning the Community Development Block Grant, the state has informally told us to expect a reduction in our request of $850,000 because of the reduced amount of money that will be available. This will mean a cutback in the scope of the project.

Recognition for planning
For a number of years I have been claiming that Bethel has one of the most progressive and innovative planning programs in the state. To support this claim the following articles on Bethel's successes in the area of planning and growth management have been published in both state and national magazines and journals:

"Bethel Charges Development with Growth Cost," Maine Real Estate Journal, Feb. 1990.

"Development Fees Used in Bethel, To Be Sure Growth Pays Its Ways," Maine Townsman Magazine, March, 1990.

"Bethel, Maine: Builders Pay Growth Fees," New York Times, March 25, 1990; and,

"Bethel, Maine, Tackles Growth Management Planning," Journal of Small Town Institute, June 1990.

The article in the Small Town Institute Journal includes pictures of Bethel Village and is distributed throughout the United States and Canada.

On behalf of the selectmen, town employees and myself, I wish to extend our sincere sympathies to Mona Lowe and her family for their recent loss. Bob was a mainstay of the Maine American Legion Post and a long-time supporter of the Bethel Airport, as well as a former Airport Manager. Bob served on the Airport Advisory Committee. His hard work and dedication to the community, especially to the American Legion, will be sorely missed.

In closing, I was recently pleased to receive my designation from the Maine Town and City Management Association as a Certified Municipal Manager. There are 25 town managers in the state with this designation.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Dr. Richard W. Judd, assistant professor of history at the University of Maine, Orono, was the featured speaker at the August monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society held Thursday evening in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House.

Dr. Judd spoke on the early history of tourism in Maine, from its beginnings in the 1830's at Old Orchard Beach through the period just prior to World War I.

He traced the origins of Maine tourism to the industrial revolution which allowed those of means who lived in urban areas to come to places like Maine to escape the summer heat and unhealthy conditions. With the railroad and later the steamship it became easier to travel to many parts of Maine.

Interest in promoting Maine as a tourist haven increased due to the work of artists (of the Hudson River School) and of early publicists such as Henry David Thoreau.

Following the Civil War, the railroads, hotels, steamship companies and businessmen began actively to promote Maine as the Vacationland we know today.

Interest in places like the Rangeley Lakes was primarily due to the quality of the fishing while visitors flocked to Moosehead Lake to hunt deer, moose and caribou.

During the business portion of the society's meeting, President Marvin Ovinga announced that the next meeting would be the 25th annual meeting, with Dr. Robert M. York as the featured speaker. Dr. York will speak on Maine trolleys.

A potluck supper will precede the annual meeting. Selected for the Nominating Committee were Alden Kennett, representing the Board of Trustees, and Betty Perkins and Randal Stevens representing the general membership. The president reminded those present that Sudbury Canada Days, the society's summer heritage festival, would be held on August 10, 11, and 12 this year and that volunteers were still needed for various events.

In other business, the Maine Kimballs announced as meeting at the Dr. Moses Mason House on Aug. 19, and the Gift of the Month was a Greenleaf genealogy from Arlene Greenleaf Brown and Robert Greenleaf. President Ovinga thanked the donors for this important addition to the collections.

Also, Persis Post announced that the refreshments all contained blueberries, a fact which fitted the topic for the evening.

LOOKING BACK
Ten years ago, Dr. Richard M. Granly, an archaeologist who has done extensive field work in Peru, Kenya, Tangayika, Labrador, Mexico and the United States, was the featured speaker at the monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society. He discussed some of his discoveries and explained their significance to the history of western Maine where he had been working for the past year.

The Bethel Rebels finished first in the Colt League.

A meal for four was offered as an auction item on Mollycoddett Day by the Bethel Historical Society for the Rotary auction. The successful bidders were Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Franklin and Mr. and Mrs. John Ciampa.

Deaths: Mabel Abbott, Luciel I. Marston, Lucy Pulkinen, Leona M. Curtis, Wesley Bean.

WAIT TIL NEXT YEAR—Westies Don King, left, and Rick Whitney work out the kinks as they prepare to face Rufford pitcher Jerome Holt during last week's Pine Tree League semifinal series. The Westies' bats never unfurled, however, and the visiting Pirates came away with a 5-3 win and a 2-1 series victory—ending the West Paris baseball season a little earlier than local fans had hoped for. Westies bow out of league championship

The Westies championship quest came up a bit short last week, as the West Paris Pine Tree League entry dropped a best-of-three semifinal series to the Rufford Pirates. The two-games-to-one series loss knocked the Westies out of championship contention. Both losses came at home, and both were to Rufford pitcher Jerome Holt.

The league championship will now be settled by a best-of-seven game series between Rufford and defending champion Lewiston. On Sunday Lewiston won the first game of that series by a score of 5-2.

The Westies had high hopes going into this year's playoffs. Their regular season record of 14-4 was the best in the league and earned them a bye in the quarterfinal round of the playoffs. And in the semifinals the Westies were facing a team that had won only three games during the regular season.

But the Pirates proved to be this season's sleeper. They had knocked off second-seeded Lisbon in two straight quarterfinal games, and they were clearly cresting coming into the series with the Westies.

And once the action started, the Westies showed only spurts of the form that had accounted for their impressive regular season record. They dropped the first game to Rufford 7-6, but then rebounded to tie the series with a 13-2 victory in the second game. The win restored the Westies' homefield advantage for the deciding game, but friendly Perham Field and a grandstand full of cheering fans were not enough to carry the day.

Backed up by a strong Pirate defensive effort, Holt allowed only four hits in the final game. The Pirates jumped out to a 4-0 third-inning lead and easily held off the struggling West Paris nine.

Rt. 219 pool room addition to include bar, sandwich shop

Charlotte Kemper met with the West Paris Planning Board July 17 to discuss plans to move a 20x23 foot building further off the road at her residence on Rt. 219.

The building, now used as a public pool room, will be moved to the end of a gravel driveway beside Kemper's barn.

Kemper said she has had problems in the past with parking because the pool room was so close to the road. By moving the building, she said, she hopes to have parking for at least 15 cars.

Kemper told board members that she plans on opening a bar and sandwich shop in the building after adding on a 20x20 foot addition, which will be on a cement slab.

Planning Board Chairman Fred Oja said Kemper does not need permission from the board to move the building or to start construction on the addition because she is within the limits of all property lines.

Board member Wendy Newmeyer reported that she recently received a call from Robert Emans who is interested in building a 10x12 foot shed on the property he is renting on the Moose Hill Road.

Newmeyer reported that the shed will only be 10 feet away from a stone wall property line, instead of the 40 feet that is required. Oja said Emans will need a variance from the board of appeals before he starts to build.

West Paris selectmen appoint fence viewers

Selectmen appointed Wade Rainey and George Holden to the new Fence Viewing Board at their July 19 selectmen's meeting.

The fence viewers will oversee maintenance, neglect, repair and/or property line disputes that residents may have.

Parties that have a dispute will be required to pay a fee to the viewers on a per-foot basis.

Selectman Phil Hyam said both Rainey and Holden have surveyors licenses which makes them qualified to hold the position.

A public hearing for a new liquor license will be held on Aug. 9 at 7 p.m. at the West Paris Town Office. The license is requested by Charlotte Kemper who plans to open a bar and sandwich shop near her residence on Rt. 219 in November.

Kemper said she will be selling only beer, sandwiches and microwavable food.

up with money for projects ready to go."

Fancy said he expected the projects to range from $100,000 to $300,000-400,000.

Lynch said having the projects all designed would also be a benefit "so that when we go to a town meeting we have some hard engineering costs to tell townspeople. This is what's hurt us in the past," not having hard figures.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Arlan Jodrey said, "This town has lost federal money in the past because it didn't have the design work done." He said he supported putting design of the projects out to bid and the selectmen so voted.

In other business Monday night, the selectmen authorized Highway Department Supervisor Bob Pilgrim to spend up to $3,500 for a used street sweeper.

Pilgrim said he knew of two used sweepers that are available. He said the sweeper now in use is worn out.

According to Lynch, the town has spent $4,500 in repairs on the 1970 Wayne sweeper since Nov. 1, 1987.

Pilgrim said it still needs new tires and another new engine and the hopper assembly is very worn.

"We run it one day and have to work on it two days," he said.

Jodrey said, "I think (it) came from the Town of Orono and they threw it out."

The consensus was that the town bought the sweeper nine or 10 years ago.

Jodrey said, "If you tried to go through the political process and buy a $70,000 (new) machine, it would get shot right down."

Also, the selectmen accepted a letter from Carrol Verrill, asking that the town hire Verrill as manager at the town's Col. Dyke Airfield.

Verrill wrote in his letter that he believes the position, which is held by Lynch, has been neglected.

Selectman John Thurston said, "I don't want to do anything to discourage Carrol Verrill. I don't know him. But if he's willing to make a commitment..." Still, Thurston said he thinks it is premature to make any changes in airport management.

Bethel police report

Police Chief Brian Stowell said this week he hopes people will take more care in securing, or watching, their belongings while at play, at work or just traveling around town.

He said his department has received several reports recently of items being stolen from unlocked vehicles or from work areas. Also, he noted, one woman had even reported an incident indicating a pick-pocket was at work in town.

On Friday, Aug. 3 at 3:10 p.m. a town office employee reported that citizens had been coming into the town office complaining that a tractor working on Paradise Road had blocked the roadway. The citizens were upset because there were no signs indicating that the road would be blocked. Police found that the contractor had a road opening permit. However, Police Chief Brian Stowell said no emergency services people had been advised the road would be blocked. The contractor, who was working on a sewer line, told Stowell he thought the sewer plant manager had taken care of notification. Also, the contractor told Stowell the road was passable to one lane of traffic at all times, by routing vehicles over a lawn at the roadside.

At 2:15 p.m. a Bridge Street resident brought in to police two bank cards she had found the previous night while walking along Bridge Street.

At 9:24 a.m. a Bethel resident reported that her purse and car keys had been stolen from her car the previous night while it was parked at an in-town bar. The woman later told police she had found the items.

On Thursday, Aug. 2 at 9:55 p.m. police provided an escort to the bank for a Route 2 business.

At 3:50 p.m. police issued a permit to an Albany resident to move an unoccupied vehicle from Albany to Bethel.

At 2:55 p.m. a town office employee reported a skateboarder had just lost control of his skateboard and the board struck the back of the municipal building. The employee was concerned that employees' vehicles would be damaged by errant skateboards. Police advised the skateboarders not to skateboard in the rear parking lot of the municipal building.

On Wednesday, Aug. 1 at 3:50 p.m. a Philadelphia resident reported her waist pack, containing money and a credit card, was missing after she left it unattended at a local business.

At 10:25 a.m. police issued a permit to a West Bethel resident to drive an unoccupied motor vehicle to a Bethel inspection station.

On Tuesday, July 31 at 12:46 a.m. a Naples resident reported a person had taken an overdose of an antidepressant near the West Bethel Post Office. Bethel Rescue took the person to Stephens Memorial Hospital.

At 6:45 p.m. police issued a permit to a Locke Mills resident to drive an unoccupied vehicle from his home on Route 222 to an inspection station in Andover.

At 6:15 p.m. police issued a permit to a North Waterford resident to drive his vehicle from Vernon Street to an inspection station.

At 11:34 p.m. a West Bethel resident reported a person operating an ATV on Route 2 and Mountain View Circle.

At 9:45 a.m. a Route 2 business requested a police escort to the bank that night.

At 9:00 a.m. a Middle Intervale Road resident reported two horses loose at the bottom of Capen Hill, where they were eating in a garden.

On Monday, July 30 at 9:03 p.m. police stopped and arrested an area resident after seeing him driving after his license had been suspended. Also, the man was driving an uninsured vehicle.

At 5:37 p.m. police responded as backup to the Oxford County Sheriff's Office, which was responding to a report of a break-in in progress at a residence on Route 5 near the Bethel/Albany town line. Upon arrival, police found all buildings secure.

On Saturday, July 28 at 8:15 p.m. a Main Street business person reported the theft of a satchel containing business records and materials from his truck, which was parked on High Street.

ARK summer program wraps up for season

The ARK Area Resources for Kids Early Enrichment program for youth is a creative learning and exploration program.

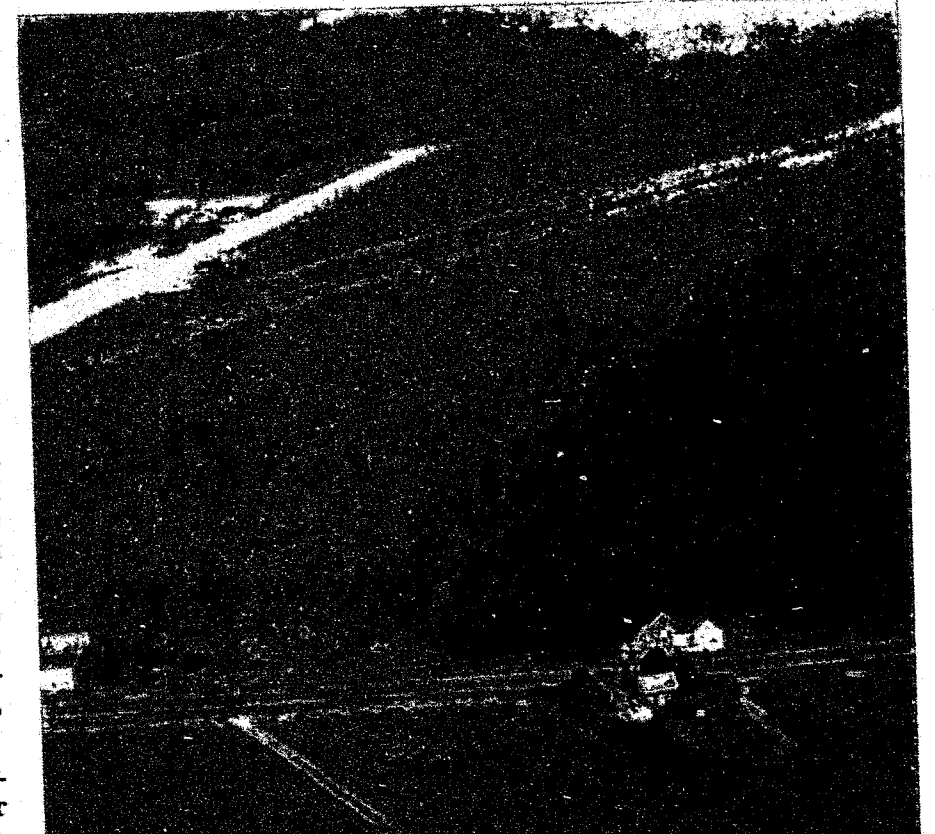

ARK explores early creative enrichment for children ages 3-8 years old through a series of educational sessions and large group exposure activities.

The first summer sessions this year included a nature exploration, an artistic trip to the beach, nature's imagery, a study of the string family of musical instruments, a folk dance workshop, and a music for kids concert.

Early enrichment opens the door to a world of new opportunities for youth. Children can explore creative activities, enhance their imagination, and increase their self-esteem.

This fall, the ARK program will offer a new series of workshops for young children in the social and performing arts, science, and culture.

Parents interested in being placed on the mailing list for registration should call the Extension Office at 743-6329. Announcements for this new series of workshops will be published this fall.

SHOPPING CENTER SITE—The Bethel Planning Board on Wednesday, Aug. 8 at 7 p.m. will act on Dogan Associates' site plan review application for a permit to build a shopping mall on Route 2, behind the building which formerly housed Telstar Video. The site, shown above in an aerial view courtesy of Bethel pilot Bob Saunders, is located behind the building on the right in the photo. Behind the site is Bethel's Col. Dyke Airfield. Firefighters battle Stony Brook blaze NEWRY—Firefighters and volunteers worked six hours Friday to extinguish a forest fire on International Paper Company land, 4½ miles north of Route 2, near Stony Brook. No injuries were reported.

Newry and Bethel fire departments, International Paper employees, the Forestry Service and volunteers from Hanover responded to the blaze, which was reported at 3:30 p.m.

Approximately one acre of land was burned over. Fire Chief Virgil Conkright, of Newry, said that 36 people worked with Indian pumps, portable pumps, rakes and shovels to contain the fire. Chief Conkright said the area had been cut by International Paper last winter and the slash—logs and branches—which were left behind provided "plenty of fuel for the fire."

Firefighters returned to the scene Saturday morning to check for possible hot spots. Conkright said hot spots were frequent after the fire initially was under control and that it appeared the fire had burned into the ground.

The trucks drove the 4½ miles on logging roads to the site, which was only about 400 feet off a logging road into the woods. No injuries were reported.

A small fire at the same site was extinguished by IP workers on June 31. This is the second forest fire in three days for the Newry department. On Wednesday, firefighters put out a 75-foot-square area on the Bernard Powers property in Newry.

Conkright said officials have "no clue" on what started any of the three fires.

East B Hill fire interrupts Auburn firefighter's July 29 fishing trip

Auburn firefighter Craig Gerry and his 11-year-old son, James, caught only one small fry on their fishing excursion to the Ellis River July 29. But their quick action prevented what could have been a "big fry" on East B Hill in Andover Surplus.

At about 1:30 p.m., the twosome spotted smoke on the wooded horizon. As they neared the source, a mushrooming cloud of smoke rising from the tinder-dry woods along this uninhabited stretch of road alerted the elder Gerry to the urgency of the situation.

Gerry raced to Upton, where the alarm was sent out, and then returned to the scene to begin battling the fire. "She was blazing in good shape when I came into the woods," said Gerry.

Those early on the scene joined Gerry with green boughs to beat down the pockets of flame at the fire's perimeter.

Minutes later, members of the Andover Fire Department arrived, and volunteers snaked a hose up the hill from the town's pumper. Grappling with the nozzle, Gerry was assisted by firefighters to move the cumbersome hose about the site, while others wielded axes into the smoldering softwoods.

Arriving with chain saws to finish off the job were Andover wood cutters John Percival, an independent contractor for Boise Cascade Paper Group in Rumford, and Gary Marston, an independent contractor for International Paper Co. in Jay.

"We very seldom have a forest fire," Percival said. "In 16 years I've never fought one."

Assessing and investigating the scene was Ranger Lewis Prescott of the Maine State Forest Service. According to Prescott, the fire was contained to less than two chains in each direction—about one-half acre. He said he saw no evidence of lightning or campfires, and the fire will remain under investigation.

Andover selectmen set 1990 tax rate

Andover selectmen announced a 1990 mill rate of 16 for the town Tuesday night after unanimously approving tax commitment figures as presented by Treasurer Alex LeGault.

Local real estate valuation is $21,595,791, and personal property valuation $14,895,155, for a total of $36,490,946.

The town received an educational block grant for $2,762.84 from state which the selectmen voted to use for tax relief. Total appropriations are $696,733.16.

State municipal revenue sharing is $65,000.00; other revenues are $56,658.45 (Cornsart Trust), making total deductions $121,658.45. The net to be raised by the local property tax rate is $375,074.71. The amount to be raised with a mill rate of 16 as approved by the selectmen will be $379,215.14, with a $4,140.43 overage.

LeGault said the real estate valuation had not changed from last year, and the personal property valuation had decreased.

Attorney Curtiss Weber notified the Board that the MCI appeal for the 89 tax assessment had been dismissed by the Bureau of Property Tax Review. Aug. 9 is the Superior Court date on their appeal of the 1988 tax assessment.

Because most of the bids opened Tuesday night on the renovation of the Town Hall for a town office, or the expansion of the present town office, did not include estimates for electricity, plumbing, heating or carpentry. Chairman Fred Emerson labeled them "for the most part inconclusive." The selectmen will determine a more exact bid proposal on both projects to be presented to residents at the special Aug. 14 Town Meeting.

Fire Chief Ken Dixon commended the action of Auburn firefighter Craig Gerry who hosed down the forest floor on the top of East B Hill Sunday, and said "We were lucky we didn't have any wind, and that Gerry (who was fishing in the Ellis River) paid attention." Gerry summoned the Andover Fire Department from Upton.

Recreation Committee member Selectmen Brian Mills announced the Recreation Committee is planning a horseshoe tournament and bike races for Labor Day.

Store owner Dave Greig has 10 days to rectify a plumbing violation after receiving official notification from Andover plumbing inspector Bill Thorpe. Greig said the situation is being taken care of. The matter was brought to the selectmen's attention by Wallace Hinkley of the Department of Human Services after an inspection by Mary Bryant of the Maine Department of Agriculture.

Installation of a new septic system at the town office has been completed. Town administrative assistant Rebecca Schachter wants residents to know that the replacement was necessary due to its condition, regardless of whether the addition to the present town office is approved by residents or not. If the town office is moved to the Town Hall, the present town office will be used for meetings of the Planning Board, Recreation Committee and other groups, and the replacement of the septic system was vital, Schachter said.

While highway department head Wilbur Chenery is on vacation, the highway department crew will be cutting bushes and scraping Black Brook Bridge for painting.

The selectmen authorized Gerry Schachter to make a ball for the top of the flag pole on the common at a cost of $25 for labor, plus the cost of material, and a new flag has been purchased.

Town administrative assistant Rebecca Schachter is attending a tax assessment law course in Orono this week. Chairman Fred Emerson stated "She will then be able to give out correct information to residents. She will not be assessing property."

The selectmen also discussed the possibility of their being able to attend similar courses in the future.

Bears reported seen in Rumford area

RUMFORD—Residents in the upper Penobscot Street area, in the Woodrowville section of town, have reported being visited by bear in recent weeks.

According to Sgt. Gerald Lambert, of the Rumford Police Department, the bear have been shy in the presence of humans. Traps have been set to capture the bears alive in hopes they can be transported to "bear country."

Monitor says contamination not from Boise Cascade's landfill

MEXICO—The Department of Environmental Protection employee who monitors Boise Cascade's Farrington Mountain landfill said Thursday that the leachate line from the landfill does not leak and that it probably is not the source of contamination in a private well that produced green water.

Terry McGovern, a DEP's Licensing and Enforcement Division, also ruled out potential sources of pollution suggested by the coordinator of the Department of Human Services' Well Head Protection Program last week.

"There is a fair chance the source of the contaminated water will never be known," McGovern said.

Green water discovered in a newly-drilled well on the property of John DeSalle, who owns a motor inn and restaurant on Route 2, contained the same chemicals as the paper mill's leachate, Alan Prysunka, director of the DEP's Bureau of Oil and Hazardous Material Control, reported Aug. 1.

Prysunka said the chemicals, which were found in the well water in smaller amounts, could indicate a leak in a pipeline that runs from the landfill in Mexico to the paper company's mill in Rumford.

But McGovern said Thursday, "It seems probable that the color comes from some other source."

Main Line Pipe tested 1,800 feet of pipe near DeSalle's property and found no leaks in that section of the leachate line, McGovern said. Pressure testing of the line indicates it is not leaking, "at least not in that area," he said.

A substantially smaller amount of sodium in the well water than in the leachate also indicates contamination is not coming from the landfill, he said. Sodium is "highly mobile," he explained, and would appear in a higher concentration if "straight leachate" was getting into the aquifer in which the well was drilled.

McGovern also ruled out an abandoned Rumford town dump across the Androscoggin River and a former metal processing plant three-quarters of a mile downriver—two possible sources named by Terry Mingo, coordinator of the DHS' Well Head Protection Program—as sources of the contamination.

Groundwater from the town dump, which received material from a nearby tannery, would probably have flowed straight into the river rather than going down to bedrock and getting into the aquifer, he said.

Because the former Vronstein and Cohen metal processing plant is downriver of DeSalle's well, it too, is an unlikely source of the contamination, McGovern said. Surface water at the metal plant also would probably have been drawn straight into the river, he said.

Bark used as fill or other material dumped in the area years ago, "before modern regulations took effect," could be responsible for the contamination, McGovern said. "That part of Mexico between Route 2 and the river had a lot of dumping," he noted.

Levels of tannin lignin, a substance produced from decayed matter such as leaves or bark that was found to be higher in the well water than the leachate, possibly could have resulted from wood waste from the Oxford Paper Corp. which owned the paper mill before Boise Cascade, he said.

It is also possible, though not likely, that there "could be some kind of ore deposit with copper" in the area of the well, he said.

Because of the green color of the well water and of the leachate are "very, very similar," McGovern said he is interested in tests for heavy metals such as chromium and copper.

Chromium, which used to be used in tanneries, or copper could produce the green color, he said. Evidence of either metal would also prove contamination does not stem from Boise Cascade's leachate, because those metals are not present in the leachate, he said.

Rep. Mills asks help for WMTS funds

RUMFORD—State Representative Jeffrey N. Mills, D-Bethel, has asked U.S. Senators George J. Mitchell and William S. Cohen for their assistance in restoring funding for a transportation system that serves senior citizens in Western Maine.

"Transportation services to Lewiston and Farmington provided by the federally-funded Western Maine Transportation System will be eliminated this year unless a budget loss of $90,000 can be restored," explained Mills. "I have requested that the senators intercede in this matter on behalf of senior citizens in Western Maine who rely on the transportation service to Farmington and Lewiston."

In a letter to Mitchell and Cohen, Mills noted that the budget cuts will affect senior citizens in several Western Maine towns including Jay, Paris, Livermore Falls, Rumford and Bangor.

Mills said he is working on this issue with other area legislators including State Representative Edward L. Pineau, D-Jay; Phyllis R. Erwin, D-Rumford; and Ida M. Luther, D-Mexico; and State Senator Edgar E. Erwin, D-Rumford.

Oxygen returning to normal after black liquor spill in Androscoggin

RUMFORD—Officials at Boise Cascade reported Aug. 1 that a spill of black liquor from its Rumford paper mill the previous weekend appeared to have moved below the Twin Bridges in Livermore Falls and that oxygen in the Androscoggin River had returned to levels within the normal range necessary to support fish life.

"We're hopeful as this thing disperses and moves down the river, the (oxygen levels) will continue to improve," Boise Cascade spokesman Jeff Nevins said.

The lowest oxygen readings obtained by the company's environmental specialist were taken in a stagnant pool in Jay July 29, Nevins said. The reading there was four parts per million.

Fish normally need five parts per million and must "struggle to survive" if they have less, he said. With under three parts per million of oxygen, fish are likely to die, Nevins noted, adding no fish kills have been reported on the river since the spill last July 28.

Approximately 100,000 gallons of black liquor—a chemical and organic substance used in making paper—poured into the river early Saturday morning, July 28, in the worst spill at the Boise Cascade mill in at least four years, according to the Department of Environmental Protection.

The spill apparently occurred as workers attempted to transfer the black liquor from one tank to another, Nevins said. Following a maintenance shutdown at the mill last week, a valve between the tanks that should have been closed was left open, he said, allowing the liquor to travel through the company's wastewater treatment facility and dump into the river.

The spill—which was halted by workers who observed high pH readings and tracked the origin to the shutoff valve—was immediately reported to the DEP. DEP employees have been out in boats and on bridges monitoring the spill all week.

Bus station may lose Greyhound

LEWISTON—The Lewiston-Auburn Transit Committee will soon know the fate of the city's bus station on Main Street.

Greyhound Bus Co. was scheduled to appear in bankruptcy court in Brownsville, Texas, last week where a court-appointed trustee will hear evidence and determine which of Greyhound's leases will be continued.

Joe Kott, transit coordinator for Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments and a member of LAATC, told the committee they should be informed later this month if Greyhound will remain a tenant at the station.

Kott said Greyhound has made "fitful" payments since it was hit with a labor strike in April and remains $3,000 in arrears.

"They will probably divest themselves of the less profitable routes," Kott predicted. If that happens and Lewiston is affected, another operator could be found; however, abandoning this route would indicate it was not profitable for Greyhound.

Chairman Richard Melvier said he thought the fact that Greyhound had once again been making payments was reason to feel optimistic.

Greyhound, crippled at first by the strike, has been back to its pre-strike service—two trips north and south daily—since mid-May, Kott said.

Tourism is up in Rumford area

Tourism may be down in other parts of the state but interest in western and central Maine is high, according to Roberta Ramey, tourist counselor at the Greater Rumford Chamber of Commerce information booth.

Noting that the Rumford area Chamber has operated the information booth continuously for 31 years, Ramey said that 500 people had signed the registration book in July, and there are many more visitors who don't bother to sign the book. One of the most frequent questions is what can we do in the Rumford area, she said.

Those people receive a brochure listing 20 places to see and visit in northwestern Maine. Places to visit include Cows' Canyon on Route 17 in Bryon; Andover Falls, Rt. 120 in Andover; the Moses Mason House, Rt. 2 in Bethel; Mollycoddets Grave, Rt. 20 in Andover; Pennacook Falls, Rt. 2 in Rumford; Lovejoy Covered Bridge, Rt. 5 South Andover; Sunday River Covered Bridge in Newry by turning off Rt. 2; Rumford Historical Society Lufkin School Rt. 2 in Rumford Center.

Other places to visit are Step Falls, Screw Auger Falls, Mother Walker Falls, Trails to Moose Cave and Jail, Grafton Notch State Park, Route 26 north.

Mines to visit include Harvard Mine in Greenwood, Mount Mica Mine in Paris Hill, and Black Mountain in Rumford (Route 120-west). There's also panning for gold on the Swift River on Route 17-north.

Several places for mountain climbing are on the list: Whitecap in Rumford with a 2-mile road to the top, Mount Zircon in Rumford with a 3.5 mile road to the top, Streaked Mountain in Hebron with a 2.75 mile road to the tower, Old Speck in Grafton Notch State Park with a 1.7 mile climb, Tumbledown in Mount Blue State Park in Weld, and Mount Blue in Mount Blue State Park in Weld.

Information for Tumbledown is available at a ranger station. The information isn't just for tourists; local people will benefit from using the information station also, said Gary Collins, president of the chamber of commerce.

Prevention & Removal of Excess Ear Wax

The accumulation of excess cerumen or ear wax occurs in many individuals. Wax may accumulate due to overactive wax producing glands, narrow or curved ear canals, or secretion of a wax that is either harder or softer than normal. Ear wax may become impacted and will be difficult to remove when it is pushed deep into the ear canal. Generally, there is no wax in the inside half of the ear canal unless it has been pushed there.

The best approach to excess ear wax is to go to a physician for professional removal of the wax with the proper instruments. Do not attempt to remove the wax with a cotton-tipped stick applicator or swab. Wax pushed next to the eardrum can cause loss of hearing. Also, accumulated wax may trap water inside the ear, producing problems during the warm summer months when many individuals go swimming.

In some instances, accumulation of wax in the external portion of the ear canal can be prevented. Many nonprescription wax-softening products contain propylene glycol or glycerin. Other wax-softening substances include olive oil, mineral oil, and diluted hydrogen peroxide solution. After the wax has been softened, it should be removed by gently irrigating the ear canal with warm water, using a rubber ear syringe.

Hearings set on forest clearcutting rules

A public hearing on proposed rules regulating forest clearcutting and the regeneration of harvested forest land will be held in Presque Isle, Orono and Gorham on Aug. 13-15, respectively.

The proposed rules were developed by the Maine Department of Conservation's Forest Service as required by the 1989 Forest Practices Act.

The act requires the agency to adopt the rules after receiving public comment at the hearing. The rules apply to public and private forestland.

• Set minimum standards for the regeneration of harvested forest stands;

• Require landowners who clearcut areas larger than 50 acres to leave 1.5 acres of forestland adjacent to the clearcut for every acre cut; and

• Place a maximum size on clearcuts of 250 acres.

The meetings will be held at University of Maine campuses; at Presque Isle in Weiden Hall Auditorium; at Orono in Room 137, Bennett Hall; and at Gorham in the Luther Bonney Auditorium. All sessions will be held from 2-4 p.m. and 6-9 p.m.

The proposed rules were developed following a series of meetings with forestry and wildlife experts, conservation groups and landowners organizations.

The Forest Service also held 15 public workshops throughout the state during the last eight months to gather information used to develop the draft rules.

According to Maine Department of Conservation Commissioner C. Edwin Meadows, a wide range of views and information has been considered by the Forest Service in developing the rules. "The proposed rules address many of the concerns that have been raised about the forest of Maine," Meadows says.

John H. Cashwell, Maine Forest Service director, says the rules are consistent with existing regulations and definitions. "Development of sound, fair rules dealing with forest regeneration and clearcutting is an important step toward protecting the public values of wildlife and water quality while considering the importance of forestry to the long term health of Maine's economy."

Copies of the proposed rules may be obtained by calling the Maine Forest Service at 289-2791 or in-state, 1-800-367-0223.

National Guard concludes training at Bog Brook

Gerald Newton of South Paris already has the three stripes and collects the pay of a buck sergeant in the Maine Army National Guard.

Now he has completed the first in a series of schools designed to make him a non-commissioned officer.

Newton was one of 50 men and women from Maine and New Hampshire who sweated in classrooms and crawled through puckerbrush during a two-week Primary Leadership Development Course which concluded at the Maine Army Guard's Bog Brook Training Area on Saturday, July 21. PLDC, as it is commonly called, is the school of hard knocks for enlisted guardsmembers who want to lead squads and platoons and companies of other enlisted people.

It can be as challenging for many of the students, who are in their 30s and 40s, as was basic training when they first joined the military.

"Most people want to do their job as well as they can," said Newton who is a new postal clerk in South Paris and who served four years in the Marines.

"A school like this broadens your horizons. You get into things you would not get into during a normal weekend drill," added Newton who is acting communications chief for the 262nd Engineering Battalion's D Company in Norway.

For example, he instructed his classmates in such tactical matters as sketching sectors of a battlefield and clearing fields of fire.

This was the first year that the enlisted citizen-soldiers from Maine and New Hampshire participated in PLDC together.

"I think we meshed together real well," Newton said. "In two or three days we were helping each other. As time went on, it got even better."

The students were supervised and instructed by senior NCOs from both states. They were always under the attentive eyes and crisp commands of three drill and ceremony instructors during their long, 17-hour days which began at 5 a.m.

Many discovered there is more to leading troops than screaming orders and making them clean latrines. They studied such subjects as conducting inspections, effective communications and drug and alcohol abuse during their first 10 days in the classrooms at the New Hampshire Military Academy's modern campus in Center Strafford, a few miles from Rochester.

They spent the final four days training in land navigation and combat tactics in the hot and humid woods around the Maine Army Guard's Bog Brook Training Area at the foot of the White Mountains.

The 10 teams of students completed their training with a 24-hour tactical exercise.

"The school wasn't as nit-picky as I thought it would be," Newton said. "It was hard, but it was a hard you could live with."

Rick D. Cables

New White Mountain National Forest supervisor named

Rick D. Cables is the new forest supervisor of the 670,000 acre White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire and Maine.

Cables' reporting date was July 2. Cables is a native of Colorado. He brings a varied background to the forest. He graduated with a B.S. degree in forestry from Northern Arizona University Forestry School in 1976.

Cables has been the recipient of several awards as well as two scholarships. In 1989 he was elected by the Chief of the Forest Service as the only person from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to attend the U.S. Army War College where he received additional training in various management techniques and strategic philosophies.

When Cables was contacted about his selection, he said he is "excited about living and working in New England."

He said he knows about the varied interests of people here and feels positive about the involvement of so many different individuals and organizations.

Cables says his background, especially his District Ranger experience where he managed a mix of uses such as hiking, crosscountry skiing, timber management and wildlife management, will help him understand the issues of the White Mountain National Forest.

Cables and his wife Cindy have three children—Stewart, age 10; Wesley, age 8; and Natalie, age 5.

"Our family is looking forward to experiencing life in New England. We want to hike, fish, ski and explore the countryside," Cables said.

Proposal announced to protect Lake Umbagog

A proposal to protect Lake Umbagog, an outstanding area for wildlife in northern New Hampshire and western Maine, is being prepared by a coalition of federal and state wildlife agencies, conservation groups, and private land owners, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced recently.

An environmental assessment presenting the details of the proposal will be released for public review and comment in September, according to Ronald E. Lamberton, Director of the service's Northeast Region.

A series of public information meetings will then be scheduled in New Hampshire.

"Working with the coalition will ensure permanent protection for this unique and extremely valuable ecosystem," said Lamberton.

The service and other coalition members are developing the project with the James River and Boise Cascade Corporations, which together own the majority of the lands around the lake.

A key component of the project will be a proposal to establish a 16,000-acre national wildlife refuge adjacent to the lake, including extensive wetlands along the lower Magalloway River and upper Androscoggin River in Errol, N.H., and the Dead Cambridge River in Upton. Refuge lands would be acquired by a combination of conservation easements and outright purchases.

"We look forward to working with the service and the states of Maine and

New Hampshire to help protect this important wildlife area," said Brad Wyman, General Manager of the Woodlands Division for James River. "At the same time, we want to show that timber management and private ownership of land can play an important role in preserving our natural heritage for future generations."

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is also working with New Hampshire's Land Conservation Investment Program to protect critical wildlife areas

Newspaper recycling drop now at in-town location

The Bethel Solid Waste and Recycling Committee is pleased to announce that as of last Thursday, Bethel is now recycling newspaper at the site adjacent to the ambulance barn.

Newspapers must be clean and dry, and packaged in a paper bag or box. Do not tie with cord or wire. Newspapers can be left in the new overseas container next to the current rolloff container for plastics, glass, tin and aluminum.

The shed at the landfill and the Ouwinga's garage are not available any longer.

For more information contact: Rockie Graham at 824-2669.

Jay Hastings named to Newbury College dean's list

Jay Hastings of Bethel was recently named to the dean's list at Newbury College, Brookline, Mass. Hastings is a management major at the college. To earn this distinction, a student must have achieved a grade point average of at least 3.3.

Newbury College, a two-year college, is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

In New Hampshire, the Land for Maine's Future Board is working to protect the Rapid River corridor and a portion of the lake's eastern shore.

"Resource protection has been a high priority of major landowners in the Lake Umbagog area," said Bob Withrow, Woodlands Manager for Boise Cascade. "This cooperative approach offers the certainty of continued protection for the valuable watershed for future years."

DEP fines C.N. Brown $70,000 for failure to report inventories

In a continuing effort to protect Maine's groundwater resources, the Attorney General's Office, on behalf of the Department of Environmental Protection, settled a case with C.N. Brown Company on July 27.

A consent decree signed by the Kennebec County Superior Court states that the firm, which markets and distributes petroleum products, failed in 1986 and 1987 to perform and report statistical inventory analyses for hundreds of underground oil storage tanks.

The decree details the steps C.N. Brown must take to measure and report product loss, and include a civil penalty of $70,000.

State law requires that inventory analyses be performed for each tank owned by the company on an annual basis. The results of the analyses indicate whether oil product is being contained or is leaking into the ground.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," according to DEP Deputy Commissioner Elizabeth Armstrong. "The whole purpose of the inventory requirement in the underground tank laws is to minimize the tremendous threat to Maine's groundwater posed by leaking tanks."

"For example, if C.N. Brown had been properly conducting its inventory analyses, the leaks in the tanks they operate at the Maine Turnpike Mile 24 rest area in Kennebunk might have been discovered earlier and extensive soil and groundwater contamination could have been avoided."

"Just one gallon of oil leaked into the ground can contaminate tens of thousands of gallons of water for decades. C.N. Brown's failure to do its part to minimize the potential for that cannot be tolerated."

The DEP is pursuing other violators of the inventory analysis requirement.

Newry

By GIL SEELEY

A reminder of the Maine Street '90 celebration, there will be a teacher pupil reunion at the little Sunday River School House on August 12 at 1 p.m. The public is invited to attend and there will be coffee and goodies served at the Newry Town Office afterwards. The ladies of Newry who want to donate bite size snacks are asked to bring it to the Town Office. Thank you.

Here is a poem by Marguerite Mosby written about 12 years ago in the Grit magazine. "The One Room School" I remember when I went to school... some of us walked, some rode a mule. To that one room house upon a hill went Mary and I, and Fred and Bill. Our teacher had 40 scholars... Her monthly wage was sixty dollars. She taught eight grades from 9 to 4, then banked the fire and swept the floor. Her subjects were not just two or three, she taught them all from A to Z. And then she taught us how to spell, in the one room school we loved so well. Seated two in a seat, our faces red, we tried to grasp what the teacher said. Lunch was a homemade sandwich or two... No cafeteria to serve hot stew. We needed no gym to make us strong, the two mile walk home was plenty long. I'm told kids are learning more today from specialized teachers with higher pay. But I remember that one room school where we all were taught the golden rule.

Louise Tetley and yours truly took off early Saturday morning, July 28 and had breakfast at Sandy's Den, then to the Bethel Farmer's Market for a few vegetables, etc. Then we were off to Woodstock's celebration stopping on the way to buy "things you can do without" at lawn sales and then to Norway's big flea market. Had lunch then home tired.

Services at the Newry Community Church were conducted Sunday, July 29 by Pastor Rodney Hanson with his daughter Nancy at the organ. The focus of the message for the day was the hymn "How Great Thou Art" with the remarks on the wonders of the world God created. (We should be grateful for it and not ruin it through thoughtless deeds). Amen.

The ladies of Newry who bowl "for fun" were: Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, and Olive Anderson. Rena Powers was a guest and her grandson Jason bowled with the ladies. Karlene was high scorer on the triples and Betsy was high on the singles with one string of 106. Karlene close second with one string of 103. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tetley are back from their trip along the coast. They visited Machias and had dinner in Belfast at the Weatherhouse.

Roger Hanscom's birthday is Aug. 14. Anyone wishing to send him a card the address is: P.O. Box 430, Cozy Inn Nursing Home, Rumford 04276.

Mrs. Bob Moxcey is back home after spending a few days in a hospital in Portland. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bessey of Elkhart, Ind. have returned home after visiting her mother, Freda Robertson and other relatives. Robert Korhonen of Elkhart, Ind. visited friends and family for the last two weeks before returning home.

Upton

Richard and Kathy Williford, Nathan and James of Rapid City, S.D., were recent visitors of her parents and sister, Laurie French and family. Jerry Bernier of Bethel accompanied them.

A special town meeting was held Wednesday night at the schoolhouse with Lori Collingwood as moderator. About 20 people were present, most of whom were voters, who speedily passed all articles on transfer of money and zoning changes. The meeting adjourned within one half hour.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

The big feature in Woodstock was the 175 year anniversary. The Willing Workers served a cold supper on July 27. They filled the tables twice which was wonderful. The children's parade followed that at 7 p.m. and was cute. Franklin Grange put on a variety program to a full house.

Friday morning the Jefferson Club served pancakes to a big crowd. Esther Davis helped at the Historical building with the Billings family and others. They sold sandwiches and had a can cookie sale.

Cos had a flea sale outside the building. A lot of interested folks came in to view the historical display. Larry Billings escorted many around telling them of the many antiques in the building and others helped him too.

We were right in the right spot to see the centennial parade as it came down Main Street from the ballfield to the town buildings. Herman Cole, our oldest citizen, rode in one car and Jimmy Howe, the oldest mail carrier rode in one wagon drawn by two horses. This was Franklin Grange's contributions to the parade. Several towns displayed their fire trucks and other nice vehicles in the parade. Many marchers representing different things in the parade.

Sunday, the third day of celebration both churches held special services, the Baptist and Universalist.

In the afternoon the Locke Mills Legion held a flag burning program as it should be done.

Ball games followed this by the oldsters and later by the youngsters.

There were several other activities going on also all over town. Open houses and sales by many.

Many pictures were taken over the three day celebration. A deer walked into my garden and nipped the cucumbers this week. He stepped on one cucumber and split it open. My plastic bags around the garden always have kept them out, but one is too friendly.

Sunday callers on myself were my nephew Norman Towne and wife Elsie, their daughter who is home from Delaware, (Norman) Bertha Goodspeed from Massachusetts and Peggy Pearson from Florida.

They spent the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Clements this past week. Their first stop on their way east was in New York where they attended the wedding of Jennifer's mother. Jennifer was the flower girl. Two days were spent in Warner, N.H. visiting an old friend, Michael Simon. The vacation in Maine included a day at Reed

State Park. The family has waded in the Pacific Ocean and now have added the Atlantic. Much to Jennifer's delight another day was spent at Santa's Village in Jefferson, N.H. A young friend and neighbor, Alishia Miclon, went along on this trip which added greatly to Jennifer's pleasure. Founder's Day at Paris Hill and Mollycoddett Day in Bethel were other activities enjoyed by both families. Visiting with old friends, antique shops, a concert in the park, and just relaxing, rounded out the visit and a good time was had by all.

High Street

By VIVA WHITMAN

A lovely Tuesday morning as I sit down to type but not enough time to stop and think what I should say as I have a soup doing a wash going and Russell is picking cukes for me to do the rest of the show. Folks certainly got their money's worth for the evening. The music was great as were the other performances and as far as we could see everyone went away happy at what they got for the price.

There was only one thing that was wrong and that was the way everything was wrong in the papers about the time the show was to start. Peggy had sent a note to the Bethel Citizen that the show would start at 7 p.m. but it still was put in that it would start at 7:30 p.m. The prices were quoted wrong as it said $30 a person or two for $5, children and adults.

Oh well, all is well that ends well so guess it didn't do too much harm as the hall was full. However, we had many asking why we were starting at 7 p.m. when it was printed 7:30 p.m. in the paper. Something was wrong but not the show. Thanks to all who came and enjoyed it and from the remarks we have all gotten, that is what I'd hope, folks enjoyed the variety show. Look for one next year.

We were up bright and early Saturday morning to get ready for the parade at Bryant Pond. Peggy and Russell and Charlotte Cole were on the committee and had come up with the idea of having John Howe (who was a mail carrier for years) ride in a horse drawn buggy as a mail carrier of old representing the Grange as they were the ones who proposed the rural free delivery when it was started way back when. Charlotte walked behind as the peas he got and he pulled the vines so he could rototill the garden up and plant other things that will grow in cooler weather better like kale and transplanted broccoli and cauliflower plants as well as some chives and sage etc. he had started in his cold frame. He is always busy doing something in the garden and it shows.

Thursday evening Russell and Peggy went to Franklin Grange Hall to help set up chairs for the variety show to be held on Friday evening.

Went to see Dr. Jealous for my back on Friday and got groceries as well as Peggy having to go back downtown to do other errands after lunch.

Kariann hadn't felt as well as she should have all week so Wynona came to get her Friday afternoon. She was heartbroken to think she couldn't go see the show and see how funny Uncle Joe and Nana and Aunt Peg would be but that is life. We went to the show and were in our seat (The Older the Better) and it went off well as did the rest of the show. Folks certainly got their money's worth for the evening. The music was great as were the other performances and as far as we could see everyone went away happy at what they got for the price.

Charlotte walked behind as the peas he got and he pulled the vines so he could rototill the garden up and a good fellow and didn't mess at all. Some of the other horses did but not him. We didn't win a prize but what our folks had for the parade was authentic and good. In the evening, Russell and Peggy went to the dance at Locke Mills but came home early as their legs were heavy and did not like to respond to their liking.

Wynona called me on Sunday morning and told me that if I still wanted to go to Augusta to the rehearsal for lecturer's conference that she would take me as Peg was going to be elsewhere. So I drove to her place and she took me to Augusta in the afternoon for the rehearsal. I was glad to get the chance to go and met other lecturers who will be at the conference next month. We practiced what we will be doing for the Maine program and had a good time doing it.

Stayed overnight at Wynona's as it was getting late when we got home and it is hard for me to drive with headlights coming at me but came home yesterday morning bright and early as Wynona had to go teaching a class on medical terminology and the rest of the family had things to do. I had to get an appointment with Dr. Jealous as my back had gone for a loop and was paining me and as luck would have it, he had an opening and could see me. What a help!

Ruth McKee of South Paris and daughter Jenny Wolozin from North Andover, Mass. called on Mary Lovejoy one evening recently.

The Lovejoy family attended the Chaudron Field Day last Saturday and had a good time there.

Sunday was the Robinson reunion and the Lovejoy family attended that. It was held at Songo Pond where all that wanted could go swimming.

It certainly has been hot weather and any who wanted it have no reason to complain. As for myself, I like it a little cooler, especially when I have so much to do but I'm sure the cool weather will be here before we know it and we will wish it were warmer again so can't be pleased all the time anyway.

Take care one and all and have a good week ahead. Enjoy the summer while you can.

Editor's note: The Woodstock schedule of events we received to put in the paper listed the variety show as starting at 7:30 p.m., not 7 p.m. Listing the price of admission as $30 or two for $5 was, obviously, a typographical error, for which we apologize.

H&R Block income tax course is ideal for mothers

Women looking for a job that won't interfere with the smooth running of their home may find what they need at H&R Block. Each tax season women around the country combine homemaking and motherhood with a career in income tax preparation. As H&R Block income tax preparers, they work the hours that suit their needs and those of their family.

Many take their first step toward an exciting new career by enrolling in the H&R Block Income Tax Course. Block's income tax course gives them hands-on experience in preparing individual income tax returns. They learn how to handle increasingly complex tax situations as the term progresses and they learn which tax strategies can save the most money. Block's experienced instructors have trained thousands of income tax preparers. Students can enroll in their choice of morning, afternoon, or evening courses. Classes begin on September 10th.

Qualified graduates of the course may be offered job interviews with H&R Block but are under no obligation to accept employment. For more information, or to enroll, those interested should stop by the H&R Block office in Rumford and South Paris, or call 1-800-660-8554.

The Locke Mills Union Church will hold its annual blueberry festival Aug. 18 beginning at 10 a.m.

The Greenwood Fire Department will hold a training session Wednesday, Aug. 15, at 6:30 p.m. at the station.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Cobb, Mandy, Calla and Preston James have arrived in Colorado Springs, Col., safely. He will attend Bible college there. It took them a week and they report except for flat tires and a broken hose it was an uneventful trip. The college has found them a three bedroom house which they and their dog are settling into.

Amy and Tony Chapman are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, William, on August 1. He joins three sisters, Annie, Caitlin and Katy so no doubt proud papa is pleased to have another male in the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Dunham and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Cole have recently become grandparents again to granddaughters, but I haven't gotten any particulars except they both look healthy and both have one older sister.

During the week I took Cocoa to Paris Hill to be shaved and dipped in preparation of her trip to Florida. She now looks like a Schnauzer (or however you spell it). Jon and Marcia spent the week in Houlton visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Smith and will spend a few days with the Paul Berkeys before coming to pick up their dog. They leave for Florida Monday, Aug. 13. I will be glad when they are safely in their apartment even if it does mean having them so far away.

In other news, Brian Dunham, West Paris, came to visit for awhile Saturday and I talked with Pastor Van Horn and Marilyn over the phone to find out how they were doing. He had a heart attack and a kidney stone about a month after his hip surgery, but seems to be getting back on track.

Danielle Bernier went to Boston on Aug. 3 for a Red Sox game. She went with the Hannons of Northwest Bethel. Cathy and Willy Williford and sons of South Dakota visited the Berniers on Aug. 2. They will be visiting again as they are vacationing in Maine.

Jerry Bernier has returned from a four day canoe trip with Outward Bound in Jackman. He enjoyed the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Randal Stevens attended the Kimball family reunion held in Byfield, Mass. last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Cummings of Pittsfield, Mrs. Kim Parker and family, East Haverhill, Conn., Mitchell Parker and friend, Justin and Todd Parker, Milford, Conn. were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Randal Stevens.

Recent visitors at Joe and Muriel Gilbert's have been: Dr. Robert and Kim Crosswell and family of Oakland; Irene and Lew Charest, Lewiston; Jean Wade, Auburn; Evelyn Kimball, Albany; Russell and Helen Pilotte, Rhode Island; Doria Duke, Vermont; Howard and Mildred Emery, Westbrook.

Mona Lowe and her mother, Frances Farnum of Bryant Pond, attended an Elderhostel in Flagstaff, Ariz. They saw many places of interest including the Grand Canyon and the lava fields from the at-one-time active volcanos. Due to Flagstaff's higher elevation, mornings and evenings are cool enough to require a sweater, but the middle of the day was very hot and dry.

Speaking of trips: Koral Smith went to Spain for two weeks this summer with the Spanish-American exchange group. She stayed with the family of the girl who stayed with her last year and had an excellent time.

Mona Lowe and Maryvonne Wheeler spent a day in Kennebunkport with Jane Rolfe and Wanda Ryerson. Brian and I plan to attend the wedding of LeeAnn Patten and Mark Brooks this afternoon.

July, the month of maturing is ending. The fireflies sparkle in the darkness. Young mammals are exploring the exciting world; limbs still wobbly. Now will come the lazy days of heat and drowsy hum of insects.

I took only a short walk this morning, my wandering being interrupted by another rain fall.

As I watched the Maine news, the article on the Allagash River brought many scenes, where I had been on a fishing trip many years ago. I recall the long drive in a car without all the comforts and speed of cars today. We left early, my husband and another couple, just when over the east a pallid light appeared and gradually intensified. The eastern sky began to glow and I watched the sun's progress and saw the great red-orange disk come poking up above the horizon.

Later, wisps of smoke curled up from the chimneys of settlements. The roads ran on, up and down past clearings and through woods. In some of the clearings were small farms, where there seemed to be little activity. I recall the washings on the lines. It was easy to ascertain the size, sex and number living in the household by the garments displayed. No census taker needed to enter these dwellings.

At long last we turned off onto a rutted gravel road, which later became a sandy trail. The charm of this road lay not only in its beauty, but by my anticipation, for around each bend I expected an adventure. Miles back into the forest we came to our camp on Churchill Lake.

I remember seeing deer and still have some of the pictures which I took. In some places the forest had been timbered and there lay trimmings, tops, bark and stumps. Churchill Lake was beautiful and vast and so were the trees. The greenness lay in billowing folds; a great blanket draped over the land. Among this lay swirling runs of brooks and rivers in which we fished with fun and success, even though the black flies were agitated dots and a nuisance. At times, especially at night there were miniature clouds of midges drifting about. We had ways of repelling them. Full and strong the rivers and brooks ran, gurgling over rocks, whispering beneath the alders, gliding into the shadows of spruce.

The forest marched right up to the river's edge—spruce, white pine and balsam fir.

Icy brooklets spilled into the river and here I caught trout.

I was glad to stop paddling and just sit on placid water under a blue-white sky.

Our last night at camp I cooked supper then stood on the porch looking out across the lake and listened to the loons and the washing of wavelets on the shore.

Morning found us on our journey toward home. Now after nearly a half century I am thankful that I can bask in bliss, lost in gauzy thoughts, looking backward in half forgotten times—and forward to unknown ones.

My sister, Lucy Ridley, visited me with her granddaughter, Crystal, on Wednesday. She had just returned from visiting our sister, Leona, who lives in Texas. She brought pictures and I was pleased to hear about her trip and Leona and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Britton and two children, South Paris, came to see me on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Immonen, West Paris, called to see Fay Holt one day. Max Pulsifer has been unable to get about much because he injured his leg and has it in a cast.

Friday, July 27 I got Mary Smith, Millie Anderson and Blanche Brown and we went to the Willing Workers supper at Bryant Pond, a delicious supper, then we went upstairs to the Grange Variety Show which was very good. It thundered and lightning and poured in some places but it didn't dampen the spirits of those enjoying the 175th anniversary.

Saturday, July 28 I went to Bryant Pond to Grange Parade, a dear neighbor, Herman Cole, 96 of Pinhook City was in the lead car. He is an amazing man. I always thought so.

Saturday, July 28 we had a successful strawberry shortcake supper. Thanks to everyone who cooked for it. Sorry about the mix-up about the tickets. It was sure warm. Sunday, July 29 I visited Roger and Brenda LeCroc. She had been at C.M.M.C. hospital in Lewiston for a few days. I hope everyone wished Sylvia McCann a happy 50th birthday on July 8. A little bird told me.

Wednesday, Aug. 1, I went with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Canwell to an open house at the 75th anniversary of the West Sumner Grange Hall. A delicious supper and very good entertainment.

Thank you Tom Christman for mowing the grass at the community club. We had a community club meeting on Tuesday, July 31 with eight members and two guests. Reports were read and accepted. Voted to have a bean supper, salads, casseroles, rolls, biscuits and assorted homemade pies on Aug. 25.

Callers have been Richard Felt, Joe Kalinowski, Millie Anderson, Blanche Brown, Lucy Robbins, Joe Vatcher. Stanley Heath brought some string beans and cukes, very tasty.

Thursday, Aug. 2, Joe and Madge Vatcher took his sister Fannie Whitten back to Massachusetts after a couple weeks of visiting.

I really enjoyed the nice breeze for the past three days. The 65th annual reunion of the descendants of Freeman and Florilla Dunham Ellingwood will be held at Ellingwood's camp on Pleasant Pond, Aug. 12 in West Sumner. In case of rain it will be held at North Paris Community Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oja have had two of their grandchildren for two weeks.

Callers at Joe Kalinowski's have been Harriet Leighton, Madeline Moslyn of Dixfield, Mildred Anderson and Blanche Brown left for home in Connecticut after a two week visit. They called Joe when they got home and said it was very hot down there.

Tuesday, July 31, Sherry Thayer brought Jason for a few hours while she went to visit her grandfather, James Coffin at Stephens Memorial Hospital. Jason and I visited, Albert and Marietta Penley, Barbara Felt, Joe and Madge Vatcher.

A couple weeks ago Evelyn Chamberlain was pleasantly surprised to go home from church and find a dooryard full of cars and people. They came to help her celebrate her birthday. Her daughter, Susan Litchfield and family of West Sumner, son, Graydon Chamberlain and family of Bethel; sister, Ina Grover and some of her children; sister, Beryl Oja; Susie Abbott; niece, Gail Oja from Massachusetts; brother, Irwin Ellingwood and daughter Frances Haney of West Sumner; sister, Doris Maxim; Walter Connell. She thought about 40 people were there and Fred Kathaus and family from Florida. I guess they had a ball.

I forgot to mention Nancy Henderson from West Paris made the 75th anniversary cake for West Sumner Grange and it was delicious.

dies and get along like young girls anywhere. And, besides, they're at an age when another, more universal, enemy looms on the horizon.

The violence at home, Clare said: "It's mostly the boys, I think." When Catholic and Protestant children mix, "All the girls get along together, but the boys separate themselves and sing (sectarian soccer) songs. And the way they talk to each other!"

But that's all far away, now. Here, the talk is of swimming and fishing in Lake Christopher; of visits to Fun-town and bumper-boat rides; of trips to Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Ocean City, N.J., and back again north into New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Bernard and Clyde Morgan who left us July 1985 and 1986.
Some days are long and empty
Without you being here.
The nights are often lonely
And we long to have you near.
When you were here, you filled our hearts
With things we can't replace.
But now that you're gone
We feel a big and empty space.
Those fishing stories and tall tales
Are missing from each day.
Your laughs and your pranks
Have sadly gone away.
For comfort, we've also lost
Your constant, faithful care.
When we came to you with our requests
You were always there.
But all is not sadness
For deep inside there lie
Memories, that always bring Joys that will never die.

Robert and Violet Swain

Robert and Violet Swain celebrate 45th anniversary

On a beautiful summer afternoon, July 21, Robert and Violet Swain of East Andover entertained nearly 200 at a gathering at their home in honor of their 45th wedding anniversary.

Violet Peters of Benton and Lt. Robert B. Swain, U.S.A.F. of East Andover were married on July 25, 1945 at the First Baptist Church in Fairfield.

The maid of honor, Amelia Swain (Entin) of Wayland, Mass. and a bridesmaid Joly O'Brian of Warren R.I. were present for the anniversary.

The Swain's three sons, wives and families, Robert II, Kay, Courtney and Lucie of St. Louis, Mo.; Rodney, Kim, Gregory, Matthew and Jennifer of Jericho, Vt.; and Ross and Leigh (Breidenbach) of Roxbury Pond, were present.

Mrs. Swain wore a corsage of white carnations, a white rose and blue star flowers. Mr. Swain had a white carnation boutonniere with blue star flowers. Hers was tied with blue and yellow ribbons. Air Corp colors. These were gifts of the Ladies Aid.

The Ladies Aid of the Andover Congregational Church prepared the buffet.

the Liberty Bell, the Vietnam Memorial and the White House—where the girls are convinced the rooms (The Pink Room, The Green Room, etc.) must have been named by a baby.

And they sampled the famous greasy cuisine along the Ocean City boardwalk.

Last week's celebration of Woodstock's 17th birthday was the occasion for a visit to the circus, for watching fireworks, for going to an American dance, and for checking out a fairground dunking machine. The latter, according to Clare, is a bit tamer than the Irish version, in which the victim is pelted with wet sponges. "And it soaks your drawers. I know. I've tried it."

Clare and Nadine also spent a lot of time together at the Touch of Country Craft Shop in Bryant Pond, which donated many Maine souvenirs for them to take back to their families.

Their summer together in Maine has helped to destroy illusions not only about each other, but even about America.

"It's not all skyscrapers," Clare said, which is the impression European youngsters are apt to get from all-pervasive American television shows.

The girls leave for home on Saturday, but plan to stay friends in Belfast—even if, like any honest friend, they admit they might not agree with just everything the other does.

"When she talks in her British voice ... Oh, how I hate that," Nadine says of Clare, who promptly turns up the British accent to complain of how much attention her roommate devotes to her hair.

"When she's in the shower she's always worrying about her hair." But Nadine, in mock offense, replies curtly: "You have to have your hair properly rinsed."

Their summer mom, who has raised five children of her own, just laughs. "Kids," she says, "they're all the same."

However, after he stopped he looked back at Avery then towards the woods and then he decided to go back into the woods from where he came.

Talk about relief. But my walk was not over yet.

Avery, after watching the scene on the road, drove his truck up to where I had been standing. We were discussing our moose encounter when I asked him if he had seen the bear on the bend. He said, "No." I no sooner had gotten the words out of my mouth when the bear ran back across the road and not with just one cub, but with two in tow.

I told Avery that I guessed I would walk back to Alan's and call Bob to come out and get me to give me a ride

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

A short time ago my family and I had a chance to visit in a camp on Webb Lake in Weld. It was a beautiful day. Puffy, nearly white clouds spotted a nearly clear blue sky. The clear blue water of the lake stretched out toward the foot of beautiful blue mountains forested by green timber. Ducks slowly swam by, watching and waiting for a handout. It was quiet except for the occasional purr of a distant outboard.

Such a scene could only remind one of His closeness to nature and to God. It also reminded me of something I had written some years before. I called it "What Is Beauty?" and would like to offer this to you.

Beauty could be a summer morning, when the mist rising from the ground hides the distant hills from view, and covers the sky with a thick low hanging blanket, and then as the sun slowly rises, gives way to its brightness with an array of color that can only be described by an artist's brush. As the mist fades away the green of the hills home. Avery very kindly volunteered his services and chauffeured me home. Needless to say I was happy to be home, but did I have a story to tell.

Told by Ramona Lowe and written by Jane Rolfe

Moose bellow

My experience with a moose happened while I was visiting my sister and her family in Maine.

After the long, hot, work week, we headed for camp, the lake and quiet. At dusk, a gray mist came floating across South Pond. Abruptly, my brother-in-law, Jean, whispered, "A moose," and pointed to some bushes close to the lot line near the highway. Alerted, I turned, eyes strained, anxious to pick out the silhouette of the animal. As a resident of Florida and Georgia, I had little opportunity to see a live moose and didn't intend to miss it.

Suddenly, the air was filled with a hideous noise, a bellowing rather like the cry of a bull with his most important parts caught on barbed wire.

I swung around, expecting to see God-knows-what kind of creature. I was startled to find that the noise was emanating from Jean's mouth. I was trying to decide if it was fright or pain that had prompted his screams when the same sort of bellow echoed back from down near the highway and there I saw what resembled a lop-eared mule sporting antlers. The animal paused for several minutes and seemed to be surveying us as we were surveying him. I had hoped to see a moose but was rewarded by also hearing one.

Raced a moose to work

Because of a family emergency I'm in Florida, but I'm thinking of the Locke Mills-Bethel area and the recent Mollycoddle Day celebration.

The gorgeous morning started early for me—5:30—when daylight awoke me. In a short time I had bathed, dressed and had my cereal and coffee.

It was a workday, so I had to tear myself away from the ever-beautiful scenery of the lake (South Pond) and the mountains beyond.

I love the drive to Norway, by way of the Greenwood Road, past Twitchell Pond, Mud Pond and everything in between, so I noticed what seemed to me to be someone's horse, loose and running along the road beside my car. I soon realized, however, it was not a horse but a moose and I remembered the stories I'd heard about a moose charging a car. I think the moose had heard similar stories from his mother about cars charging moose because I moved away from him, and he moved away from me about the same time. I felt happy and excited for the remainder of the day as I served people at the Motor Vehicle Office in Lewiston. I repeated the story many times of how I "raced a moose to work."

Townspeople have also objected to Newry's disproportionately small voting power on the SAD #44 Board of Directors—where representation is based on population, rather than valuation or assessment.

Sysko said that concerns about the quality of education provided by SAD #44 are also an issue for many residents.

Hospital.

A nursing supervisor at SMH reports that there were no serious injuries incurred in the mishap, and that those involved were treated and released.

Greenleaf was summoned for failure to yield right of way. A short time later (11:12 a.m.) in Woodstock, a 1983 Buick operated by Christopher Hoyt, 16, of Bryant Pond, slid on wet pavement and failed to negotiate a turn onto Route 26 from the Old Route 26.

The car struck a guard rail on the right side of the road, causing extensive damage to the vehicle but no injuries to Hoyt or to the three younger passengers in his car.

However, at 11:49 Paula Mills, 38, of Bryant Pond, who had come to the scene to assist the youngsters, was standing behind her own parked car when a tow truck parked behind her rolled into her, briefly pinning her against her own.

Mills complained of knee pains and was transported by Bethel Rescue to SMH, where she was also treated and released.

The tow truck involved in the accident was owned by Kenneth Knapp of Bryant Pond. State Trooper Timothy Turner, who was at the scene at the time, said later that he would investigate to determine why the truck rolled forward into Mills.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE, THERE'S CHICKEN—The Andover Fire Department tackles the hot job of preparing lunch.

AUCTION ON THE GREEN—Saturday's hot weather didn't make it any easier for auctioneer Joey Martin to interest the crowd in this vintage exercise bike.

ON TARGET—Scott Ferland launches an ax throw in the woodsmen's competition.

FIRE STATION FEAST—Lunch time found the Andover Fire Station full to overflowing with hungry diners.

Andover Olde Home Day

What a difference a year makes. Last summer the rains put a heavy damper on Andover's Olde Home Day, but this year the sun smiled and one of the largest crowds in the history of the celebration turned out to enjoy the good food, the contests and all the other activities that make up a summer fair.

The town fire station was the hub of much of Saturday's activity.

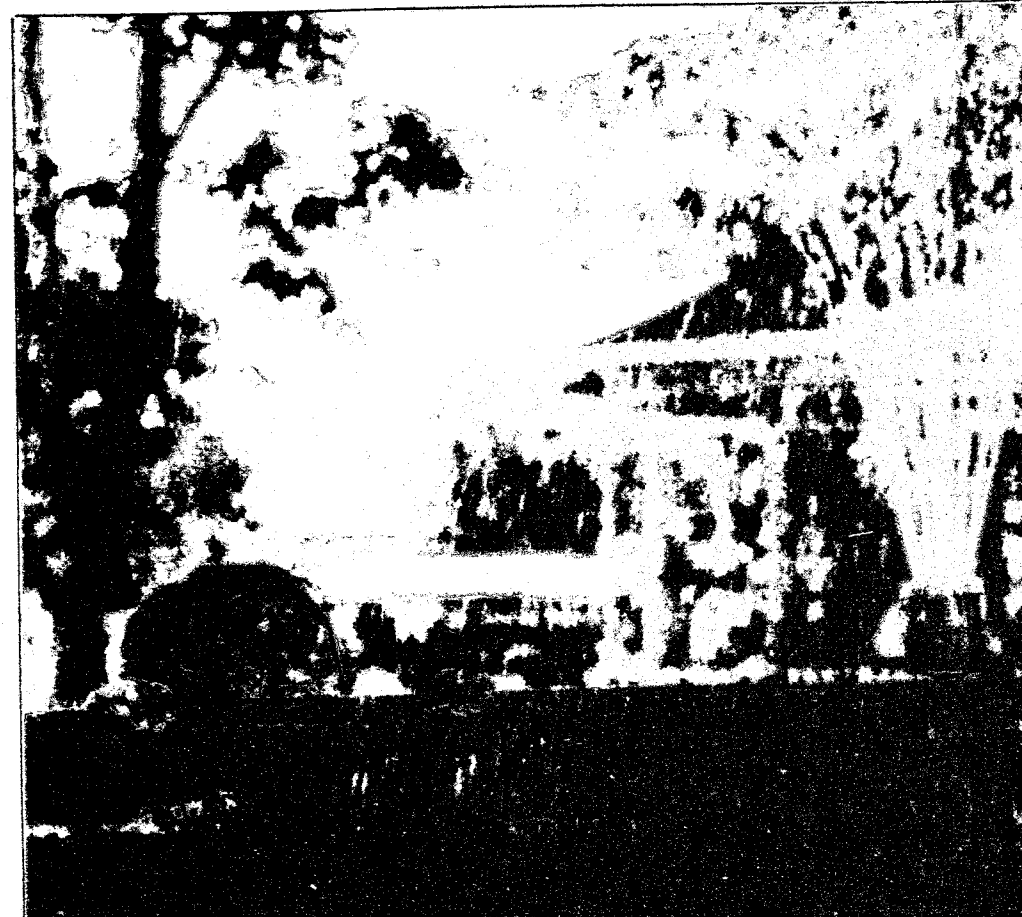

The firemen prepared 400 barbecued chicken dinners and quickly sold out the 200 tickets available for the fire station dance on Saturday evening.

Earlier in the day, 16 teams from 12 towns took part in the firemen's muster held on the ballfield across from the station.

Other Olde Home Days events, taking place on the common and other locations around town, were equally well attended—and, to judge from the smiles, equally well appreciated by townspeople and visitors.

OLD TOOLS attract appreciative attention.

KILROY WAS HERE and he was hot. This unidentified young fellow thinks the fountain on the Andover town common would be a great place to cool off.

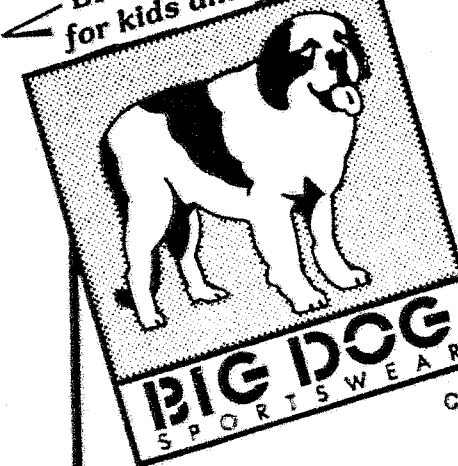

COUNTRY CRAFTS are always a summer fair favorite.

Annual Kimball reunion Aug. 19

The Maine descendants of Richard Kimball of Ipswich, Mass. (1636), will meet for their annual reunion at the Bethel Historical Society's Dr. Moses Mason House, Broad Street, Bethel on Sunday, Aug. 19.

Registration begins at 10 a.m. and snacks and beverages will be available all day. Those attending are encouraged to bring picnic lunches to eat on the spacious grounds (inside if weather is inclement).

Each person is asked to bring a 3x5 card on which their name and address is written, followed by their line of descent from Ancestor in Common Richard Kimball. The cards will be placed on a bulletin board making it possible for all to compare and to establish possible cousinship.

In addition to bringing the card, each one is asked to bring a good used item (or an inexpensive new one) to be auctioned to help meet reunion expenses. Master of Ceremonies, Albert Kimball will be the auctioneer.

Vicki Rackliffe elected vice-chairman of Maine Arts Sponsors

Vicki Rackliffe of Bethel, Co-Director, Mahomet Arts Council, has been elected Vice Chairman of the Maine Arts Sponsors Association.

Other new officers are: Chairman, Rolf E. Olsen, Marketing and Public Relations Director, Maine Center for the Arts, Orono; Treasurer, Robert Bahr, General Manager, Bangor Symphony Orchestra, Bangor; Secretary, Rebecca L. Bearden, Marketing Director, Portland Concert Association, Portland.

Everyone is asked to bring one or two toys from the 19th or 20th century to exhibit, since the speaker for the afternoon program will be speaking on antique children's toys.

She is Liane Chapman, of Portland, and has collected toys for several years and will bring some of her own to show, as well as slides to accompany her talk.

Tin wind up toys, cast iron banks, dolls, doll furniture or dishes, teddy bears, stuffed animals, games are among the many kinds of toys of interest, as well as children's books.

Prizes will be awarded to the person coming longest distance, oldest, youngest, and also a drawing for a door prize will be held.

For information on the reunion, call Elizabeth Mason Carter 836-2343, or write at P.O. Box 44, West Bethel, or Stanley Howe at the Bethel Historical Society 824-2908 or write to him at the Dr. Moses Mason House, P.O. Box 12, Bethel.

THROUGH HIKER—Ken Wadness, of Framingham, Mass., took a break from hiking the Appalachian Trail to spend a night at the Andover Arms, then take in a bit of the fair, then head down to Bethel for dinner with his parents.

Lyceum held at Middle Intervale Meeting House

A small but responsive group of people attended the Lyceum, Poems From Out of Bethel by Phyllis Dock on Sunday, July 29 at the Middle Intervale Meeting House.

The Meeting House is bordered by the farm of 6th, 7th, and 8th generation descendants of Dr. Timothy Carter, who gave land for a Meeting House and Common to the Town of Bethel when Middle Intervale was the center of town. The setting and the beauty of the day served to provide images of history and the inevitability of change, as reflected in Dock's poem "Evolution of A Species".

In keeping with the theme of Bethel, Dock also read poems of earlier poets, circa late 18th to early 19th century; Lucy Larcom's poem "On the Lodge," that lodge having been a favorite look-out spot on the then John Russell farm (now owned by Richard L. Davis); and Addie Kendall Mason's "Mollycodd's Curse," which vividly portrays Mollycodd's outrage at the greed of one man who stole the Kokomiko Indians' gold, resulting in her curse of sickness and misfortune for his lifetime as well as the lifetimes of his descendants.

Participants were encouraged to share historical moments as Dock read others of her poems, which portrayed childhood memories from logging camp days to today's technological society, ending with her lyric poem "Bethel, Maine," written in 1974.

Middle Intervale Meeting House News

Members of the Middle Intervale Meeting House Society will hold a Food Sale from 1-4 p.m. on Sudbury Canada Days on the lawn of the Moses Mason House, Saturday, Aug. 11.

Members of the calling committee for quilts will still accept quilts for showing. Quilters may contact Mary C. Keniston, 824-2504, Geraldine Howe, 824-3188, Arlene Brown, 824-2149, or Louise Annis, 824-2811.

The next monthly meeting of the Society will be held on Aug. 13 at the Middle Intervale Meeting House at 7 p.m. Members and friends are urged to attend.

Adult Ed classes to begin in early September

The Fall 1990 term of SAD #44 Adult and Community Education will begin in early September, featuring vocational, literacy, high school completion, career guidance, college credit, and general enrichment programs. A course brochure will be mailed to all residents of SAD #44 towns and neighboring communities late in August, according to Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell.

Highlights of the upcoming term include a new approach to the delivery of high school completion and literacy instruction provided by new staff member Rockie Graham.

Remedial reading, writing and math instruction will be available during both day and evening hours, and students will be able to progress at a faster rate with the availability of more instructional hours per week.

Adults who are interested in high school completion including GED, or who wish to improve basic skills to prepare for college, vocational training or advancement on the job, should contact the adult education office, 824-2780, to arrange for an intake appointment.

Also, SAD #44 Adult and Community Education and NOVA will cooperate in offering a Regional Business Skills program.

Many courses will be back this fall, including bird carving, chair seating, and woodworking.

Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell welcomes suggestions for new courses, and may be reached at the office, 824-2780. The deadline for additions to the fall schedule is Aug. 15.

The Community College of Maine Interactive Television course schedule for Fall 1990 has been released by the University System, and includes over 30 courses which will be offered at Telstar Regional High School in Bethel.

A complete brochure for the Community College of Maine was mailed to SAD #44 area residents in late July. Additional copies are available at the Adult and Community Education office at Telstar Regional High School.

Students who are interested in registering for college courses may call the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

David Ackley of the University of Maine's Rumford Mexico Center will hold office hours at Telstar High School on Wednesdays, Aug. 8 and 15.

Individual appointments may be scheduled by calling the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

Prospective students who have questions about college work, financial aid, admission to degree programs or course selection should call for an appointment. There will be an on-air Orientation for New Students on Aug. 30, prior to the start of classes on Sept. 4.

ATV safety workshop set for Sept. 15-16

Do your children or family members ride ATV's for fun, recreation, or work? Here is an opportunity to benefit from professional ATV education. Instructors representing American Honda and the ATV Safety Institute.

There will be a two-day workshop held on the Fryeburg Fairgrounds on Sept. 15-16, focusing on safety equipment, rider fit, safe operation, and advanced riding skills.

Registration cost is only $5 per day to cover the cost of lunch. Professionals from across Maine and across the nation are coming to share their expertise with our young people and their families. This program is being brought to you by the University of Maine Cooperative Extension, 4-H, ASI, and American Honda.

On Saturday, Sept. 15, there will simultaneously be multi-rider course sessions, educational displays, and materials.

Sunday, Sept. 16 workshops include ATV's and the laws in Maine, the advanced riders skill test, ATV demonstrations, ongoing displays and presentations, and ATV's and our natural resources.

Call the University of Maine Cooperative Extension at 743-6329 for registration materials and more information.

'Shavey' Noyes sketches at Matolcsy Art Center

August 7-18.

Noyes, who was known as "Shavey" by all who knew him, was born Aug. 30, 1863, to Amos and Anna Chase Noyes.

The show opens Aug. 7 and a reception that evening from 6-8 p.m., public invited. At 7 p.m., Dick Denison will give a brief talk about the character of Noyes and the wit he possessed.

The show runs from Aug. 7-18, from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.
